An evening of Poetry

With Dinah Livingstone and Jehane Markham

Embodiment
Dinah Livingstone

Jehane Markham

Two of our favourite poets return. Dinah Livingstone will read from her new, tenth, book of poems Embodiment, Jehane Markham, known for her long association with Highgate Library and for performance readings either solo or with her Trio or other poets will perform her work. She was poet in residence at the CNJ and a judge of the Folklore Poetry Prize. Jehane's work is lyrical and accessible, she wants, above all, to communicate with her audience.

Following a brief AGM of the Friends Corinna Marlowe looks at two late 18th century characters with colourful lives and local connections – painter Morland and actor, singer, composer and impresario Dibdin. Morland is known for attractive rustic scenes and dallied in “the hamlet of Kentish Town”. Dibdin wrote over 600 songs and his grave is found in Camden Town.

We'd have had a great night out with them, but best not to lend them any money!

Thursday 8th April 2021 7.00 for 7.30pm

AGM followed by

George Morland and Charles Dibdin

A Kick in the Belly Women, Slavery & Resistance
Stella Dadzie

A Kick in the Belly: Women, Slavery & Resistance* tells the forgotten story of enslaved West Indian women and the many different ways they fought back. It is a tale of courage and resilience that has been virtually air-brushed out of history. Described as 'beautifully written and meticulously researched', the book sold out within weeks of being published. Join us if you'd like to hear more from its author, Stella Dadzie about the reasons she wrote the book and why these invisible women deserve to be remembered and revered.

Cathedrals of Steam

Christian Wolmar

London has a dozen major railway stations, more than any comparable city. King's Cross, St Pancras, Euston, Marylebone, Paddington, Victoria, Charing Cross, Cannon Street, Waterloo, London Bridge, Liverpool Street and Fenchurch Street - they are the hub of London's transport system. Christian Wolmar tells the dramatic story of how these great cathedrals of steam were built, reveals their impact on the capital and explores the evolution of the stations and the city up to the present day.
